

May is National Community Action Month

New York's Community Action Network

The New York State Community Action Network of 49 Community Action Agencies provides services to people in low income households in every county and borough of New York State.

Each May the agencies celebrate Community Action Month by sharing their customers' biggest accomplishments, recognizing their community partners and volunteers and reminding us all of the need that exists in their communities.

Agencies present awards, hold fundraisers and host events for the whole community. Please join your local Community Action Agency in celebrating.

Community Action changes people's lives, embodies the spirit of hope, improves communities and makes New York State a better place to live.

In FY 2014 Community Action Agencies in New York State provided services and/or resources to 787,976 low income people including 360,084 children and 57,672 senior citizens. Emergency assistance was provided to 193,931 individuals or families in crisis.

$54,289,991 in CSBG funds were allocated in New York State in FY 2014.
